PDX Natural Dye and Pigment

\(https://www.facebook.com/groups/pdxdye/\) is group of regional artists who create colors out of natural materials like rocks, rust, kitchen scraps, fungi, and plants. Utilizing a range of techniques for transferring this color, they then create sculpture, books, paintings, drawings, apparel, quilts and more. "Our processes are informed by traditional recipes and cross-cultural wisdom as well as modern methods."

Center Gallery

Becoming Feral - a solo show by Pearlyn Tan

Contra Spem Spero (Against All Hope, I Hope) - a solo show by Irina Belova

In Becoming Feral, Pearlyn Tan (<https://www.pearlyn.net/>) explores the “shifting internal landscape of midlife,” which she experiences “not as a loss of control, but a return to instinct.” Using solar printing techniques, her work maps the intersections of body, identity, and nature. Pearlyn has exhibited widely across the Pacific Northwest. Her work has won numerous awards and is in several public collections.

Irina Belova (<https://www.instagram.com/woolalchemyboutique/>) is a self-taught fiber artist who uses felting techniques to create sculptural work out of wool, silk, hemp, flax, and bamboo. “They are deeply personal, shaped by my connection to Ukraine and by the collective struggle of my people. Yet they also speak to a universal truth that even in devastation, endurance emerges, quiet but unbroken.” 20% of the artist’s profit from exhibition sales will be donated to Aid Ukraine Now (<https://www.aidukrainenow.org>).
